2 Introduction and Background to the Project / Programme

2.1 English and Digital for Girls' Education (EDGE) aim to improve English proficiency, digital literacy, and life skills among adolescent girls in marginalised communities through peer-led school clubs. Implemented in five districts of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa (Peshawar, Nowshera, Mansehra, Mardan, and Charsadda) and Quetta, Pakistan, the programme supports girls' confidence, voice, and agency while promoting safe learning spaces and gender equality.

The British Council, in partnership with UNICEF, is implementing the EDGE (English and Digital for Girls' Education) programme in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and Baluchistan to empower 1,820 marginalised adolescent girls from Afghan and the host communities, by enhancing their English, digital, and social skills. The project directly addresses critical barriers to education and skills faced by girls in fragile contexts through a structured, peer-led club model.

EDGE is a multi-phase intervention that combines basic education, digital literacy, and social empowerment to equip girls with the tools needed to make informed life choices and pursue future employment and learning opportunities. Delivered through structured EDGE clubs, the project also trains Peer Group Leaders (PGLs) from within the participant group to lead the sessions, promoting leadership and sustainability.

Implementation structure

The programme is delivered across two distinct phases so far, totalling approximately 300 hours of instructional time:

1. Foundation Phase (90 hours)
 - a. Completed with 1,820 girls from KP and Baluchistan between July 2023 and May 2024.
 - b. Included training of 221 PGLs and a full-scale endline evaluation (already conducted).
 - c. Focused on basic English (A1 level), introductory digital skills, and essential social/21st-century skills.
2. Consolidation Phase (120 hours)
 - a. Builds upon the Foundation Phase to further develop English (A1–A2), advanced digital skills, and deepen social awareness, including blog writing, internet use, online safety, and digital media creation among the same cohort of beneficiaries.

7 Specification

The British Council invites qualified individuals, organisations, or consulting firms to submit proposals for conducting an impact evaluation study of the EDGE (English and Digital for Girls’ Education) project implemented in specified locations in Pakistan. The purpose is to assess the project's performance, generate evidence of impact, and inform future programming for girls' education and empowerment.

- The evaluation agency is not required to re-evaluate the Foundation Phase, as it was previously assessed under a comprehensive endline study in partnership with UNICEF.

The evaluator is rather expected to:

- Use and reference evidence from the previous foundation phase evaluation to build the narrative to be used for the possible Extension Phase.

- Track and assess the outcomes of the consolidation phase, using both quantitative (baseline-endline comparisons) and qualitative (FGDs, interviews, case studies) tools.
- Assess the scalability and progression of impact, for example, how much the consolidation phase builds on or advances the gains from the foundation phase.
- Evaluate the continued effectiveness of EDGE's core methodology, including the peer-led model, community engagement, and digital inclusion strategies.
- Taking into consideration an existing long-term impact evaluation of the EDGE programmes, build on the recommendations and further build on the findings from this evaluation.
- Provide actionable recommendations for the extension phase of the project, scale-up, institutionalisation, and future donor engagement.

Key evaluation questions

The evaluation is expected to address the following Key Evaluation Questions (KEQs) in congruence with the outcomes, necessary to demonstrate the value and impact. The agency needs to build on the evidence available through the previous evaluations (evaluation from previous phase and edge global evaluation), as well and avoid re-generating same evidence.

1. To what extent is the project's focus on language and life skills relevant to the aspirations, challenges, and enabling conditions of disadvantaged groups, particularly women, girls, and displaced youth?
2. How has the project created enabling conditions (based on the strengthen of its design) that helped women and girls to leap towards empowerment pathways?
3. What transformative changes have emerged as a result of the project?
 - identify the case stories demonstrating significant change around the key outcome areas
 - probe, how much of the observed changes can be reasonably linked to the EDGE project?
 - assess the counterfactual value of the EDGE using "what if" parameters and exploring the aspect of what otherwise, would the lives of these girls have looked like without EDGE?
4. How is EDGE distinct or complementary, analyse in a comparative approach of similar other programmes targeting similar outcomes (wholly or partially) in Pakistan. Demonstrating its unique value offered. To how much extent the project's is harmonized with government education policy framework and with UK and British Council strategic evidence priorities (which would be shared during inception) and what value it adding forth?

5. In which areas of the project do we expect ripple effects to continue over time, and what makes these areas likely to create lasting value for disadvantaged groups, especially women and girls?

To understand the underlying context of the above provided Key Evaluation Questions (KEQs) the agency is expected to consult the detailed outcome metrics of the project as well, a partial list of high-level questions is provided below. The agency can flexibly map these outcomes under the KEQs to substantiate the story. A set of high-level outcomes are:

1. Outcome 1- Partnerships between local and international institutions contribute to understanding of and support for language and other skills as enablers for disadvantaged groups, especially women and girls
2. Outcome 2- Educators, teachers and learning facilitators have developed capacity to support disadvantaged learners and have benefitted from accessing networks to share best practice
3. Outcome 3- Women and girls have improved language, life skills, confidence and agency to access opportunities in their communities
4. Outcome 4- Displaced people and disadvantaged children and youth have improved language and other life skills to enable agency and access to resources and opportunity

We would like the agency to map the strength of evidence against each of the outcome area as part of the topline analysis in the final report. This will help us navigate where does and under which result areas, there is a significant leap and vice versa.

This, therefore, is a detailed excellent response that meets all aspects of the requirement leaving no ambiguity as to whether the bidder can meet the requirement.
7	Good – Overall the response demonstrates that the bidder meets all areas of the requirement and provides all of the areas of evidence requested, but contains some trivial omissions in relation to the level of detail requested in terms of either the response or the evidence. This, therefore, is a good response that meets all aspects of the requirement with only a trivial level ambiguity due the bidders failure to provide all information at the level of detail requested.

This, therefore, is a poor response with significant ambiguity as to whether the bidder can meet the requirement due to the failure by the bidder to show that it meets one or more areas of the requirement.

Final scores in terms of a percentage of the overall Proposal score will be obtained by applying the relevant weighting factors set out as part of the award criteria table above.
